Benedictine Has 16 Graduates in '46 Nursing Class

Theology Professor Urges Nurses to Adhere to Moral Standards of Course

Sixteen student nurses were graduated Sunday afternoon from the Benedictine Hospital School of Nursing at commencement exercises held in St. Mary's Church. The Rev. James T. Connolly, pastor of the church, presided at Mt. St. Alphonsus Seminary, Esopus, addressed the class. Speaking to the class, the Rev. Father Connolly said that the underlying cause in the chaos of the world today is the disregard for high moral standards. He urged the nurses to adhere to the educational, moral and religious principles which have been instilled in them during their education. "These principles," he said, "are necessary if a nurse is to be a real success."

Wins Scholarship
Miss Gloria Marie Granwehr of Saugerties was awarded the scholarship for advanced nursing education. The annual award sponsored by the medical staff of the hospital, Ladies' Auxiliary and Alumnae Association, is made to the student who has the highest scholastic average and is most proficient in professional fitness.

The Rev. Austin V. Carey, chaplain of Benedictine Hospital, presided at the class which included the Misses Elizabeth Margaret Amrod, Shirley Frances Crotty, Gloria Marie Granwehr, Ann Florence Mornie, Saugerties; Kathleen Bell, Boiceville; Arlene Black, Alice Mary Fenton, Florence Mary Marks, Regina Elizabeth Robertson, Lillian Samuels, Kathleen Louise Schleede, Kingston, Agnes Francis Clancy, Petersburg; Catherine Marie Donlin, Marguerite Rose Wiers, Oneonta; Carolyn Edna Enright, Phoenixia; and Theresa Agnes Mangold, Freehold. The diplomas and scholarships were awarded by the very Rev. Mgr. Martin J. Drury, P.R., V.F., who congratulated the class on having attained its goal. The service was closed with the solemn benediction of the most Blessed Sacrament followed by the National Anthem. The choir of St. Mary's Church participated in the service and Theodore Riccio was at the organ.

Water Will Be Caught by Dam of Type Similar to That at Ashokan

Herbert De Kay, president of the Ulster-Greene Council, announced today that Knaust Brothers will build a lake at the new Ulster-Greene Council camp at East Jewett as their contribution in the current campaign.

During a visit of inspection by a member of the national engineering staff of the Boy Scouts of America, a natural bottleneck was discovered at a spot where geologists say was once a natural lake. Paul Bird of the New York city board of water supply, surveyed this area to determine its practicability and was high in his praise of the site. He immediately designed the construction details and early in the spring specifications were sent to a number of contractors, in the area for bids, but due to the fact that the bids submitted were far in excess of the amount of money available for this work, the bids were not accepted.

In the meantime, Knaust Brothers became interested in this project and as a result offered to make this contribution to the local council. The area to be developed is now heavily wooded with young trees which will have to be removed, stumps and all, before any construction can begin. This area will be very close to the troop camping areas so that it will be readily accessible to Scouts using the camp. The diving area is to be approximately 12 feet deep while the balance of the 3.2 acres of water will be comparatively shallow which will make it ideal for the use of canoes and row boats and will also have a tendency to make the water quite warm. The dam is to be an earthen dam similar to that of the Ashokan reservoir except that it may have a concrete core wall in the center.

It is planned that this lake will be completed in time for use when camp opens again next spring. This lake will replace the rather small concrete pool which provided the only swimming this past season. Practically all successful Scout camps are built around swimming pools and boating facilities because it is at a Scout camp usually that Scouts qualify for their life saving, swimming, canoeing and rowing merit badges. With a lake of this size, instruction can be given in the safe methods of righting an upturned boat or in sustaining those who were in the boat even though it is full of water.

Mr. DeKay, in making the announcement of this fine gift, expressed the optimistic view that at last real headway could be made in the development of a real camp for the boys of Ulster and Greene counties and predicted that with a successful financial campaign on its way, it looked as though sufficient money would be raised to warrant the construction of a new dining hall sufficient to handle increased enrolments. Knaust Brothers have long been known for their keen interest in the welfare of all worthy organizations in this area and their philanthropies are varied and many.

There still is, however, an urgent need for the construction of an infirmary, wash houses and other auxiliary buildings.

Five Communists Get Stay In London in Squatter Case

London, Sept. 16 (AP)—Five Communist leaders charged with conspiracy in the organization of a squatter invasion of vacant London luxury apartments received an eight day stay of arraignment this morning when Prosecutor H. A. K. Morgan announced that he did not intend to "go on with the case today."

The attorney for the Communists, four of whom are London municipal officials, agreed to postpone the trial until September 24 and the accused were freed on continuance of the same bond posted when they were charged last week. Although the prosecution and defense were apparently in agreement on the delay there was no indication in court of the reason for the postponement.

Hot Fight May Come In Cabinet

Truman Statement Is Not End of Storm Over Wallace Talk in New York

'Mistake' Assailed GOP Questions Wisdom of Wallace's Criticism of Policy

Washington, Sept. 16 (AP)—Secretary of Commerce Wallace and top State Department officials conferred with their respective advisers today, to determine whether either should make a new move publicly in the intra-administration row over relations with Russia.

Aides at the Commerce Department generally expected Wallace would try to find a way to carry on his fight to soften United States policy toward Russia in the face of opposition from Secretary of State Byrnes and the State Department. But his actual course evidently was being determined by today's meetings behind closed doors.

At the White House, Secretary Charles G. Ross said that President Truman had no appointment today with Wallace, had not heard from him over the week-end and had no plans, at the moment, to see him later this week.

At the State Department, officials said they hoped that Wallace would decide against making any more speeches on foreign policy unless he first clears them with the State Department. Information as to his actual course was lacking there, however.

Esopus Blaze Destroys 'Club 21'

Motorists Discover Fire at 4 A. M.; Probe Is Being Made

"Club 21" a night club on Route 9-W at Esopus was completely ruined by fire of mysterious origin between 3 a. m. and 4 a. m. today, state police of Highland reported. The fire was discovered by passing motorists about 4 o'clock. The state troopers were notified and they immediately summoned the Esopus fire department.

Chief Harry Maines and the Esopus department fought the blaze for more than an hour but were unable to save the structure. The frame building which had been added to the original stone structure on the property was destroyed completely.

The night club is operated by Anthony DeRosa, of 15 Liberty street, Poughkeepsie, who said he left the place shortly after 3 o'clock this morning. An investigation is being conducted by Corporal John Metzger of the state police B.C.I. branch and Trooper William Martin of Highland.

Poughkeepsie Man Is Killed in Crash At Bridge Curve

Marbletown Woman Badly Injured in Accident at Highland; One Other Hurt

One person was killed and another is in critical condition at Vassar Hospital, Poughkeepsie, as the result of an automobile accident about 2:50 Sunday morning at the Highland entrance to the Mid-Hudson bridge.

Fred S. Beatty, 38, of 48 Market street, Poughkeepsie, was killed instantly when the 1940 DeSoto sedan he was driving failed to make the sharp turn at the bridge entrance and crashed into the rocks at the side of the highway.

Gladys Bodie, 22, of Marbletown was reported in critical condition at Vassar Hospital this morning. She was given a blood transfusion last night. Miss Bodie was riding in the front seat with Beatty and Harry Simmons, 32, of 42 Washington street, Poughkeepsie.

Miss Bodie and Simmons sustained fractured legs and internal injuries, but Simmons' general condition was reported fair.

Hits Hillside

The accident occurred when Beatty for some unknown reason ploughed into the rocky hillside at the bridge entrance. He was heading toward Highland at the time. State Trooper Bill Martin of the Highland barracks said Beatty was thoroughly familiar with the turn having traveled across the bridge many times in the past.

The Beatty machine rammed into the stone bank with such force that the engine was pushed back under the floor boards, pinning Miss Bodie and Simmons under the dashboard. It required more than an hour and a half to extricate their legs from the wreckage.

Steering Wheel Snaps

Beatty met his death when the steering wheel snapped off, glanced off him and shot through the roof. Beatty was thrown clear of the car onto the pavement where he died almost instantly. He died from internal injuries and hemorrhages.

Mr. Beatty formerly operated the Central Taxi Service in Poughkeepsie and more recently was operating a chain of gas stations in Dutchess county. He is survived by his wife and one child.

In charge of the toll booth at the mid-Hudson bridge, notified the state troopers of the accident and called the ambulance that conveyed the victims to Vassar Hospital.

Coroner Jesse McHugh of Wallkill was called and conducted the investigation with Trooper Martin. Coroner McHugh issued a certificate of accidental death. The car was a total wreck.

Their Bodies Are Found

The bodies of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Anderson (above) were found near Yuba City, Calif., after Anderson's son, Billy, 16, confessed in San Bernardino, Calif., to Sheriff Emmet Shay that he and another boy had killed his father and stepmother. Officials said both victims had been shot. (AP Wirephoto)

Two Boys to Face Charges They Slew Rancher and Wife

Billy Anderson and Nathan James Are Said to Have Told of Killing Pair in Yuba City

Barstow, Calif., Sept. 16 (AP)—Two teen age youths were en route to their home in northern California today to face charges of slaying one boy's father and stepmother.

They are slim Billy Anderson, 16, and Nathan Edwards James, 15, whom District Attorney Lloyd Hewitt of Sutter county said had confessed the slaying Sept. 8 in Yuba City of Rancher W. H. Anderson and Mrs. Donnie Marie Anderson, Billy's father and stepmother.

With them in their brief flight from California, but not implicated in the dual slaying, was 12-year-old Marilyn Hodge. Hewitt and Sheriff G. W. Carpenter of Yuba City planned to take the trio by auto to Yuba City.

Billy was taken into custody here when he tried to cash a check, was transferred for questioning to San Bernardino and returned here secretly last night. Nathan and the girl were picked up in Topock, Ariz., questioned at Kingman and brought here last night to rejoin Billy in a union that was marked by silence when the two boys passed each other in the jail.

Boys Tell Stories

Alternately tearful and calm, the boys gave matching stories of the slayings in their respective interviews, the district attorney said. Hewitt said the Anderson boy told of firing a blast from a 12-gauge shotgun at the side of his father's face just after the James boy had shot the stepmother with a .22 caliber rifle. A second shot was fired into Mrs. Anderson's body by Nathan, Hewitt said. The boys, hiding outside, fired through a window.

"I did it because the folks were so tough on me, and my stepmother never did get along with me," Hewitt quoted Billy as saying.

The trio had long planned to run away, but the girl, the boys insisted, was never aware of the slayings, Hewitt recounted. They picked her up after the shooting, which occurred in the bedroom of the Anderson home, and later separated, driving the Andersons' two cars.

Hewitt said the boys stuffed the bodies into the compartment of one car, and later Billy dumped his father's body beside a creek east of Yuba City and his stepmother's body was left on a rock pile near Oroville.

Next day he cashed checks totaling nearly $300, and the trio's out-of-state dash began, the district attorney revealed.

Clashes May Come Between Unions in Maritime Strike

Massed Picket Line Faces A.F.L. Longshoremen as Shipping Tieup Is in 12th Day

(By The Associated Press)

The twelfth day of the nationwide maritime strike found New York city's waterfront tense today with threats of clashes between thousands of picketing C.I.O. seamen and A.F.L. longshoremen under instructions not to "respect any commy picket line."

C.I.O. National Maritime Union leaders hauled out their most formidable weapon — the massed picket line with marchers so closely linked it is virtually impossible to squeeze through—as negotiations to end the walkout collapsed.

Police strength was bolstered throughout the sprawling docks area. C.I.O. leaders said last night there might be trouble if the A.F.L. longshoremen attempt to breach picket lines as they did Saturday to help unload the S.S. George Washington.

Fourteen liners with more than 6,000 passengers — half of them Army or Navy personnel — were due in New York port during the day.

Many longshoremen were on the job along the waterfront but they had not passed picket lines to get there. Some men, anxious to return to work after 11 days of idleness, reported for work early, before the C.I.O. pickets were dispatched for duty.

Ryan in Black Limousine

Joseph P. Ryan, president of A.F.L. longshoremen, was covering the waterfront in his black limousine, urging his men to go to work where steam was up and winches could be operated.

"We don't respect any Commy picket lines," he said. "If the A.F.L. seamen will give us steam, we'll work."

There was no indication that A.F.L. seamen, who had the support of C.I.O. seamen in the early days of the strike, would return to work until members of the rival union, too, had won a pay rise.

The A.F.L. seamen won their demands in a ruling by Economic Stabilizer John R. Steelman, but no provisions were made immediately for passing the increase along to C.I.O. maritime workers. N.M.U. bosses, consequently, declared that more than 20,000 of their men in New York port alone would be marshallled for the greatest show of strength ever seen in a maritime labor dispute.

More than 5,000 were expected to go on the march today.

Conferees between officials of the National Maritime Union (C.I.O.) and east and gulf coast ship operators were broken off last night when the operators said discussions would be "futile" while the N.M.U. coupled its demands with those of two west coast unions.

The operators also refused to continue the negotiations because of the N.M.U.'s action yesterday in withdrawing security watches from ships in Atlantic and Gulf ports, leaving them unguarded from "fire and other potential perils."

Calls It 'Lockout'

Joseph Curran, president of the N.M.U., walked out of last night's meeting and termed the employers' action a "lockout."

Agreement Should Be Honored for Sake of Peace, Senator Says in Paris

'It Must Be Real' Senator Says State Must Not Be 'Paper' One, but Have Character

Paris, Sept. 16 (AP)—Senator Tom Connally, replying to Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov, today demanded that the peace conference establish Trieste as a truly free state, independent of both Yugoslavia and Italy.

Citing the principles on Trieste agreed upon by the Foreign Ministers Council, Connally asserted these agreements should be honored for the sake of peace.

"Let us make Trieste the symbol of peace and security in the world," the Texas senator urged.

Connally, who is chairman of the U. S. Senate's Foreign Relations Committee, addressed the Italian Political Commission. He said Trieste must not be "merely a paper state."

"It must be a real state, with its own character, its own strength, its own independence and its own dignity."

"The free territory must not be a satellite of Yugoslavia on one hand nor of Italy on the other. Both Yugoslavia and Italy must accept our settlement in good faith."

There must be no mental reservations," he declared, glancing around the table as if to warn both nations.

The senator made no reference to the controversy arising from last week's speech by Secretary of Commerce Wallace on American foreign policy. Instead, he devoted nearly all his speech to comment on the Trieste proposals made Saturday by Molotov and echoed this morning by the Yugoslav deputy premier, Edvard Kardelj.

In an hour-long speech, Kardelj declared western powers were attempting to "draw a heavy iron curtain around the Mediterranean Sea."

Must Do Its Duty

Connally asserted Europe, which had produced two world wars, must do its duty for peace.

"World peace," he said, "is more important than a few miles of territory or national pride."

"The challenge to peace is here, right here on our doorstep, right here on this table. Trieste must not be another Danzig. It must be free from intrigue and conspiracy."

Here Connally omitted a sentence from his prepared speech reading, "we cannot tolerate another Sarajevo," a reference to the assassination in Bosnia which sparked World War One.

Italy and Yugoslavia, the senator emphasized, were both subordinate to world peace. All nations were involved, including the United States, and the senator declared his voice rising to push home the point, "they want peace."

Connally referred to the agreed portions of article 16 of the Italian Peace Treaty, giving the United Nations Security Council responsibility for maintaining the integrity and independence of Trieste, along with the right to name Trieste's governor and to supervise its government.

Says Reds Agreed

He recalled the Soviet Union had also agreed to these provisions, despite Molotov's statement Saturday that the Trieste assembly should be all-powerful, and that "foreign troops" should evacuate the city 30 days after the treaty is effective.

"The United Nations Security Council has the primary responsibility to preserve and maintain the peace of the world," Connally said. "That is in harmony with our objective here."

Answering criticism that the American proposal on Trieste's Government was "undemocratic," Connally said that under the United States plan the assembly, elected by a universal secret ballot, would in turn elect the government council.

The assembly would also draft the city's constitution for Security Council approval.

Regarding Customs

Future customs authority at Trieste should be worked out by the free territory and the United Nations on a long-term basis, the senator added, explaining that the United Nations wish to use such revenue to run the city instead of imposing heavy local property taxes.

Government Troops Drive Wedges Into Yen'an Line

Nanking, Sept. 16 (AP)—Government troops drove deepening wedges into the Chinese Communists' Yen'an-Kalgan line of communications today, seeking to isolate the two key Red cities—and peace hopes dropped to near zero.

Communist spokesman Wang Ping-Nan acknowledged that "we may lose this or that city or that area," but added that "we are not worried... the government may seize land, but cannot win the war against us as long as our troops are intact."

And the Reds will not discuss any political settlement, he reiterated, until Chiang Kai-Shek pledges an unconditional ceasefire order. This Chiang has been unwilling to do.

Pro-government field dispatches said the Communists already were removing supplies from Kalgan, regional base dominating the gateway to Chahar Province to the north. Yen'an, Communist "capital" roughly 425 miles to the southwest, was not directly men-

Truck Strike End May Be Near on Offer by 2 Firms

Agree to Shorter Hours and Weekly Raise of $7.40 for Employees

New York, Sept. 16 (AP)—Prospects of a settlement of the trucking strike that has shut down many industries and food stores in New York city appeared brighter today despite a breakdown in negotiations between the union and an employers' committee.

The solid front of employers was broken by two large firms, which offered the union a reduction in working hours and a $7.40 weekly pay increase and union representatives unanimously agreed to recommend the proposal to their membership at a meeting tomorrow.

Mayor William O'Dwyer's Advisory Committee reported the offer made by the H. C. Bolback Company, Inc., and Daniels and Kennedy after the unsuccessful conclusion of the committee's talk with organized employer representatives and officials of Locals 80, 282 and 816, International Brotherhood of Teamsters (A.F.L.).

The committee reported at the same time that one of the three employer associations, the Master Truckmen of America, had asked that it be allowed to deal with the union apart from the other two.

A spokesman at City Hall, who declined to permit use of his name, said it was hoped that the union membership, which last week voted not to authorize signing of separate agreements, would go along this time with the "divide and conquer" strategy.

Only the membership of Local 807 need ratify the agreement since the other two locals have empowered their negotiating committees to enter into an agreement.

Will Give Opposition
Joseph M. Adell, chairman of the Joint Wage Scale Committee representing the Motor Carrier Association and the State Motor Truck Association, said in a statement that the new wage offers were "outrageously out of line" and would be opposed by his group "to the utmost."

A union official recalled that a 1938 trucking tie-up similar to the present strike was ended within 24 hours after the Daniels and Kennedy firm, haulers of newspaper and general commodities, broke away from other operators and signed a separate contract with Local 807.

Traffic Increases
Police reported that truck traffic through the Holland Tunnel today was 75 to 80 percent of normal today compared with a low of 40 percent early last week.

Cans Across Street Damage Two Cars

Police are investigating the stringing of a number of tin cans on a rope, and then stretching the rope and cans across Abel street, near the Dwyer sand bank, at a height of about four feet above the pavement, which resulted in damage to two automobiles.

According to the police report, Saturday evening at 8 o'clock John E. Bigler was driving west on Abel street, when his car struck the rope and cans. He applied the brakes and as his car stopped it was struck in the rear by an auto driven by John J. Struble.

Both cars were damaged, but no personal injuries were reported. The car Bigler was driving, according to the police, is owned by William H. Plasse of Route 1, Kingston, while the car Struble was operating is owned by William A. Struble of Edenville.

The sheriff's office reported a similar incident on the Leggs mill road near the Lake Katrine bridge. A minor who was pulling the same stunt there was apprehended by sheriff's office men and turned over to his parents after a reprimand. There was no accident involved.

Japan Hoped to Get 3-Power Drive To Conquer World

Tokyo, Sept. 16 (AP)—Documentary evidence that Japan hoped to persuade her traditional enemy, Russia, to join with Germany in a tripartite pact to conquer the world will be introduced soon at the International War Crimes trial, authoritative sources disclosed today.

The evidence will not go so far as the late Prince Fumimaro Kono's declaration that Russia had approved such a plan "in principle."

But Japanese officials said it would show that Japan actively planned such a deal to protect her northern flank for the thrust into the rich territories of southwest Asia.

This part of the strange story of double-dealing and intrigue surrounding the tripartite will be presented as the next phase of the prosecution's case against former Premier Hideki Tojo and 26 other accused warmongers.

Deputy Prosecutor Frank S. Tavenner Jr., Woodstock, Va., may present the opening argument tomorrow or Wednesday.

Russia was a constant shadow in the background while Japan was discussing the tripartite pact and in dealing with the Soviets, Germany double-crossed Japan twice, the documents will show.

permitted in the territory and then only in case of an incident requiring international action.

"There could be no military or naval bases established," he declared.

With Connally's statement the commission closed its discussion of the statute for Trieste, which will now go before a special subcommittee. The commission will take up various proposals on September 16 to October 16 every day from 9 to 5 o'clock.

New Chancel Is Dedicated Sunday In Uptown Church

Dr. M. S. James Is Speaker at Ceremonies Held at Fair Street Reformed

The sanctuary of the Fair Street Reformed Church was filled with members of the church and friends Sunday evening when a consecration and re-dedication service was held for the new chancel which was completed recently.

Dr. M. S. James, D.D., professor of homiletics at New Brunswick Seminary and a former pastor of the Reformed Church in Albany, delivered the sermon and the service of consecration was given by the Rev. Robert G. Diggs, pastor of the Hurley Reformed church and president of the Classis of Ulster.

Others participating in the service of consecration were the Rev. Frank B. Seeley, D.D., minister emeritus of the Fair Street Church; the Rev. J. Dean Hester, minister of the church; and members of the Classis of Ulster were seated in a body within the chancel.

In his sermon of dedication Dr. James quoted from the writings of Nahum, one of the prophets whose writings are less familiar to the majority of persons. Quoting from this book of the Old Testament which contains the prophecies of Nahum of the fall of Nineveh, he selected two passages as the thought for the evening.

The first of the two thoughts, which he said were very appropriate for the evening, was "Keep Thy solemn Feasts, O Judah," and he said he felt this to be a necessary core of worship on which the world must depend for a dedication of thought and life, a deepening of soul and purpose which form the inner meaning of life.

The second thought of the prophet which he selected was "Keep the Fortresses." Our country and the world was in a terrible state of danger, he said and he called upon everyone to recognize these dangers and to form a resistance movement in religion which would be the "only defense against moral suicide."

He called upon the people to form this "resistance movement" against pagan tendencies, moral dishonesty and all that is cruel and ungodly. The worshiping church becomes the resistance church," he cautioned.

Representing the congregation in the traditional ceremony of presenting the key of the church to the president of the Classis for the consecration, was Kenneth H. Wood who has served as chairman of the improvement committee.

Mr. Wood presented the key to the Rev. Mr. Dickson who in turn performed the traditional ceremony of consecration.

There was a special musical program with J. Fulton Main, organist, and Miss Helen Turner, soprano.

Poison Mustard Gas May Be used in Cancer

Washington, Sept. 16 (AP)—Researchers are exploring the possibility that one of the nitrogen mustards of the poison gas family can be used as a medicinal agent to combat such malignant growths as cancer.

The Army Medical Service told about it today in announcing a paper by Capt. D. A. Karnolsky, who worked at New York Memorial Hospital with Drs. L. F. Craver, C. P. Rhoads and J. C. Ahels.

War-time studies of mustard gases revealed that they have an effect on lymphatic tissue and bone marrow, where blood cells are formed quite similar to that produced by heavy X-radiation.

This finding, said the announcement, "led to the possibility that, used in rigidly measured doses, they might actually be used as medicines for blood and lymph neoplasms."

The problem is to administer the medicinal agent—a very potent poison—by injection in such balance that it does more harm to the unwanted tissues than to the surrounding healthy and normal tissue. That also is the problem of X-ray treatment.

While experiments are being carried out in several institutions, the report cautions against expecting too much from nitrogen mustard at the present stage of development.

A 1938 Dodge coupe operated by Edwin Krom, 19, of 57 Stephen street, Kingston, was completely wrecked about 1:30 p. m. Saturday when it turned over several times near the Cherry Hill farm outside the city limits on Route 28.

Miss Barbara Ann Bonesteel, 17, of Sawkill, who was riding with Krom, suffered a possible fractured knee. She was taken to the Kingston Hospital in Conner's ambulance. Her condition this morning was reported good.

According to information given to the investigating officers by a witness, Krom was proceeding toward Kingston at about 25 miles an hour when he lost control of the car while rounding a curve.

The car shot off the road, side-swiped a telephone pole and turned over four or five times before it came to a stop on its four wheels across the highway. The car was completely demolished.

Deputies Belmore and Ellis were investigated for the sheriff's office.

State Police Still Search for Woman

Bronx Woman Has Been Missing Since Thursday

State Police, aided by blood hounds from the Hawthorne barracks, were still searching today in the Maplecrest area of the Catskill mountains for Mrs. Mary Sheehan, 73, of the Bronx, who has been missing since Thursday morning from the Sugar Maples Hotel, where she had arrived several days before on a vacation.

Mrs. Sheehan was last seen about 10 a. m. Thursday as she strolled down the road near the hotel. When she did not reappear that afternoon Trooper Russell of Windham was notified and began a routine investigation. When she failed to appear Friday a more intensive search was begun, Lt. Fitzpatrick of Latham and Cpl. Hillfark of Ravena joining Trooper Russell. Late Friday afternoon Cpl. Horton brought the blood hounds from Hawthorne. The dogs appeared to have picked up a scent Friday night and the party found a footprint in the woods when darkness halted the search.

The search was resumed during the week-end, Trooper Russell and a son-in-law of Mrs. Sheehan and a number of local residents aiding the State Police.

action a "lockout." He said the union would not resume negotiations until west coast shipowners agreed to meet with the Marine Cooks and Stewards Union (C.I.O.) and the Independent Marine Firemen's Union.

Both unions are affiliated with the N.M.U. in the Committee for Maritime Unity, organization of six C.I.O. unions and the one independent group.

West coast shipowners maintain that their contract with the two unions, who ask the same increases won by A.F.L. seamen last week, does not provide for a reopening of the wage question at this time.

The unions are seeking parity with the A.F.L. sailors Union of the Pacific and the Seafarers International Union, which obtained wage boosts of $22.50 monthly on the west coast and $27.50 on the east coast. The N.M.U. last June won a $17.50 monthly raise for its members.

Curran made a bid for government intervention today when he sent a telegram to President Truman asking the President to instruct government agencies to "force" a contract "which will embody the same pay increases as those secured by A.F.L. maritime unions on the basis of the same pay for the same work."

In widening the strike which has tied up approximately 1,200 ships in ports all over the country, the N.M.U. yesterday extended the walkout to include colliers and N.M.U.-manned ships under foreign registry in addition to withdrawing security watches.

Barbers, Manicurists Strike
New York, Sept. 16 (AP)—Barbershop managers and owners in Manhattan were going it alone today as their helpers and manicurists went out on strike in a wage dispute. Early reports indicated the strike was not causing much inconvenience—the worst being that some customers had to wait for service because of the reduced staffs. The rank and file of New Yorkers paid little concern to the latest strike—there already being 40 others throughout the city.

Nimitz Confident Lasting Peace Is Possible to Have

Admiral Tells Gathering
It Will Be Hard Climb;
Advices Patience
With U.N.

Philadelphia, Sept. 16 (AP)—Fleet Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, advocate of a strong navy "until it is proved that war has been abolished," is confident that lasting peace is possible.

However, he told approximately 5,000 persons yesterday at Independence Square ceremonies honoring Commodore John N. Barry, a hero of the navy, the road to such a peace "will require a long, hard uphill climb."

He told those who would condemn the United Nations because of the difficulties and disappointments it has suffered in its brief existence that they should remember the experience of our own 13 colonies as they struggled to form a government satisfactory to all.

"Surely then," the chief of naval operations continued, "we should have patience with the U. N. as it attempts to overcome the barrier of differing political and economic systems, diverse speech and varying aspirations."

It is better to be "blunt and tough" in peace conference rooms, he added, than to "have bullets fly after one."

Need New Designs

In an interview following his arrival by plane at the Philadelphia naval base, Nimitz said recent atom bomb tests showed that "our ships will have to be strengthened and new designs used on future ships to meet this form of attack—if the A-bomb is not outlawed."

"I believe the A-bomb is not far removed from a poison attack. The amount of radio-activity is a form of poison maybe even more dangerous than gases. I hope and believe that atomic energy will be used for useful purposes and not for war uses."

Dictatorship Is Bound To Be Scrapped in Brazil

Rio de Janeiro, Sept. 16 (AP)—Early reestablishment of representative government in Brazil was forecast today by the constituent assembly's decision to ratify the new constitution Wednesday, thus ending a nine-year dictatorship.

The charter drawn up by former President Getulio Vargas in 1937 abolished congress and conferred dictatorial powers on the president. Until the new constitution is ratified the Vargas charter will continue in effect, although the former president was ousted.

The new draft revives a bicameral congress, permits the president to veto legislation but provides for overriding his veto by a two-thirds vote of both houses in joint session. The president or any member of congress may initiate legislation.

Michigan Couple Accused of Hiding Man They Helped Escape

Detroit, Sept. 16 (AP)—Rudolph Joseph Soelch, 24, identified as a former bodyguard of Herman Goering, was held by the F.B.I. today, together with a woman who had hidden him since his escape from a California prisoner of war camp six months ago.

Robert A. Guerin, F.B.I. agent in charge here who announced the arrests, said the woman was Mrs. Joan McBride, 42. Soelch, Guerin said, has been living in Detroit as "Mr. McBride," and working as a baker and bus boy. Mrs. McBride was a waitress.

Mrs. McBride's husband, was arrested Saturday at the home of his mother in Bristol, Pa.

The F.B.I. said Mr. and Mrs. McBride picked up Soelch last April 12 on a lonely road near Camp Haan, a prisoner of war camp near Riverside, Calif. Soon after arriving here McBride went to live with his mother.

Soelch's escape was planned by the McBrides, the F.B.I. said.

Soelch was a member of the Hitler Youth and later served in the Herman Goering Division as a bodyguard to the No. 2 Nazi. The division was sent to North Africa and Soelch was captured by the British in Tunisia.

Guerin said Mrs. McBride, a native of Prussia, became a United States citizen with the naturalization of her father. She and her husband face prosecution for giving aid and assistance to an enemy, a charge with maximum penalties of a 10-year prison term, a $10,000 fine or both.

Hancock, Williams Held by Police

A routine check on a passing automobile by Officers William Messing and Charles Hoehing on Sunday morning at 1 o'clock, led to the recovery of an automobile reported stolen from Poughkeepsie on September 1, and the arrest of two negroes, who were later in the day turned over to the Poughkeepsie police.

The two officers in one of the radio cars were driving through Ferry street when they halted an auto driven by Stanley Hancock, 18, of Poughkeepsie, and asked to see Hancock's operator's or driver's license.

The negro was unable to produce his license, and was placed under arrest by the officers. Later in the day it was ascertained that the car Hancock was accused of driving without a license had been stolen from Poughkeepsie.

The Poughkeepsie police informed police headquarters here that the car had been stolen in that city on September 1, and was the property of Robert Davis of that city. They asked that the car and negro be held until they sent officers here after him.

With Hancock at the time he was arrested was Walter Williams, 17, another negro, and he also was held by the police.

Sunday afternoon officers from the Poughkeepsie police department arrived in the city and both negroes were turned over to them. They are charged with grand larceny in the theft of the auto.

BLACK MARKET IN CARS

It is not necessary to pay black market prices for automobiles.

The O.P.A. has a special team to combat the illegal deals, but the agents need reports from buyers. When a customer discovers that he is being charged more than ceiling price for either a new or used car, he should inform the nearest Price Control Board. If he has already paid the bill, with O.P.A. help he can retrieve the extra cost and sue for damages. The O.P.A. will see that he does not lose the car.

Black market techniques in the car business have strange twists, but they all add up to a price far above the legal limit. Most common rackets are paying too little for a car turned in, compelling the buyer to take unnecessary accessories at exorbitant cost, requiring the customer to agree to an expensive repair job, and demand extra money on the side.

Any person familiar with the ceiling price of the car he wants to buy, and the ceiling price of the car he may be turning in, can spot the black market dealer easily if he is on the lookout.

As long as people give in and pay anything for the sake of getting a car, black markets will go right on taking advantage of them. The government is equipped to protect the customer, so he might as well use that protection.

Good hobby for fall evenings is to get out the atlas and study a little European geography. The more you look at that network of boundaries, the more the peace treaties mean.

RADIO FOR FISHING

The advent of the full moon will no longer cause West Coast sardine fishermen to stay ashore, nor will they be compelled to do all their fishing at night, if a detector now being tried out proves to be practical.

Sardines, or pilchards, as they are properly called, run in schools, and are characterized by a luminescence which makes them visible in the dark. The nets are cast on a signal from a watcher in the crew's nest when this glow is seen in the water.

Now sonar, a horizontal underwater detector, seems to be able to spot a school of fish as much as a mile away. Many fishing boats are equipped also with fathometers, sonic sounding devices, which show the passage of a school of fish beneath the vessel by indicating less depth. Added to these appliances are ship-to-shore radios, by which the fisherman can contact the cannery, notifying it of the size of the catch and probable time of arrival.

These devices and others which were developed under war conditions have been improved and widened to increase efficiency and profits of peace-time activities.

The British Air Ministry has decided not to make a plane designed to fly 1,000 miles per hour until they have experimented with pilots going 750 miles per hour. The British are always so cautious.

BUDGET IN THE ORIENT

Once upon a time life in the Far East was leisurely and inexpensive for Americans who went out to live in surroundings of tropical color and curious natives. Food and servants were incredibly cheap, and it all sounded lazy and glamorous to the friends back home.

Not so any more. Young business men who find themselves with great gaps between salary received and essential expenses are wondering why they ever mentioned inflation in the states. Minimum living costs for a man and wife in Singapore, not counting rent or savings, have been calculated at $800 a month. Housing is scarce and expensive, and prices in general have zoomed up.

The easy life gets more and more elusive.

'These Days'

By George E. Sokolsky

O.P.A. MEAT AND MONEY

It was amazing. On Friday there was all the meat one wanted; on Monday, there was none to be had. I shopped in two cities, 150 miles apart. The phenomenon was the same in both places. I have since learned that it was the universal experience when the O.P.A. on meat was restored. Following the inevitable Law of Supply and Demand, meat disappeared from the market.

Butchers are smart not to handle meat under O.P.A. controls. No man should do business at a loss. Only the government does business at a loss. Maybe that is why the bureaucrats in Washington have the loss habit and do not care whose money they lose. The reason for the failure of all totalitarian economies is that they are planned to substitute the flat of one colossal mentality for the broad, age-old experience of the human race.

It is amazing. As long as O.P.A. was off meat, nearly all meats were plentiful and prices were reasonable. Considering that wages and nearly everything else has gone up, the butchers charged more than the O.P.A. ceiling but less than the Black Market price. They included increased overhead in price. They allowed themselves something for their own rising cost of living. It seemed very fair to me.

Then as a political compromise, the O.P.A. was put back on meat and we have no meat. In other words, as soon as the O.P.A. interferes with the Law of Supply and Demand, the food disappears. And quite soundly, for no one should sell anything at a loss. No one should be asked by the government to sell anything at a loss.

There is only one solution to this problem: it is, kill the O.P.A. Kill it dead. Fire the great army of investigators, inspectors, spies and snoopers who prevent honest tradesmen from earning decent livings. Close the thing up and fire the whole crowd. Any American would rather see his money pass over the counter to his neighborhood butcher than to know it goes to a Black Marketeer.

And while we're talking about closing up a government bureau, I should like to ask what happened to the money that was paid into the Federal Treasury for war risk insurance policies against bombings. Hundreds of millions of dollars were paid for war risk insurance against bombing and as we were not bombed, there could have been no claims. What was done with the money? How has it been allocated? How was it used? Who authorized its use? Let's have an answer to those questions.

War risk insurance is typical of the marginal activities of the government since it has gone into all sorts of business ventures. Surely, when a government corporation makes a loss, the taxpayer puts up the money. But what happens when a government corporation makes a profit? Obviously, the profit from war risk insurance against bombings must have been stupendous as no bombs were hurled at the United States. Who gets the profit? Is the government in business for profit? If so, how do the stockholders, the American people benefit by the profit?

The same thing is true about the insurance policies that the boys and girls in our Army and Navy are dropping. Who gets the money? Is it turned back into the Treasury? If so, what relationship does it have to Congressional appropriations? For instance if $1,000,000,000 of military insurance is dropped in the year 1946, the government has profited to the extent of the paid-in premiums. Where does that sum of money go to? How is it accounted for? What relationship does it have to total appropriations? Who decides how this windfall is to be allocated?

Surely, the government is not entitled to waste these windfalls. Nor ought it to spend a dollar except as appropriated by Congress. Nor does the government require a huge unexpended surplus. In fact, such a surplus is a menace to good government because it gives the bureaucrats funds to play with independently of the Congress.

The time has come to ask questions. Maybe, we can get an income tax cut in spite of the 3,000,000 and more officials who have fallen upon us like a murrain.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

BLOOD PRESSURE

Instead of discussing operations as in former days we hear and read more about blood pressure, especially high blood pressure.

In a little book "Hypertension" (high blood pressure) Dr. Irvine H. Page, Director, Lilly Clinic, Indianapolis City Hospital "acquaints the patient with the essential facts about high blood pressure—what it is, what can be done to relieve it, and how the patient with high blood pressure can live comfortably."

The first fact to know is that the heart has to pump large amounts of blood to all parts of the body to nourish it and remove waste products. It has to force blood through the blood vessels under pressure just as with any pump. The blood pressure is measured with a blood pressure machine. "The cuff which is wrapped around the patient's arm is blown up with air which squeezes the blood vessels until no blood can get through. When the air is released slowly, it is possible, by listening with a stethoscope over one of the large vessels below the cuff, to hear throbbing sounds when the blood starts to flow through. This point is taken as the systolic or highest pressure. The cuff is then deflated further and when the sounds disappear, another reading is taken. This is diastolic pressure. It is the most important of the two as it represents the pressure which must be developed by the heart before it can even begin to pump blood into the vessels."

As a matter of fact the systolic or highest pressure, the one always talked about by patients, can increase 30 or 40 points within a few minutes, caused by excitement, eating a large meal, emotional disturbances or other conditions. On the other hand the diastolic pressure, never discussed by patients but of more interest to the physician, is not affected to any extent by food or emotion and gives a more reliable picture of the actual pressure needed to even begin to pump blood into the blood vessels.

So don't get alarmed if your systolic pressure is high at times. The lowest point it ever reaches is really your actual systolic pressure.

The National Coffee Association said so at a convention in Chicago, and who should know better? Members apparently don't even remember the word shortage. They tell of green coffee beans in this country to supply everybody for five months, and no particular problem about getting more. While inflation and shortages harry the family shopper, it's a safe bet to know that the country can go on a coffee drinking spree.

Winter and Spring Window Boxes

By DEAN HALLIDAY

Released by Central Press Association

WINDOW BOXES add to the attractiveness of houses during the summer and they are still more important in winter when deciduous shrubs about the house are bare.

A good winter window box combination consists of ivy drooping over the front and ends of the box with from three to six evergreens as the main accent points, as illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph.

Another winter combination is two globe arbutus, 15 inches high and 12 inches in diameter, and one golden plum cypress, 18 inches high.

Still another grouping, and one that is less expensive, calls for five Norway spruce trees, all 18 inches high. Moss Retinospora and Spiny Greek Juniper are excellent evergreen for winter window box purposes. The former is

A number of prominent horsemen of the city met at the Eagle Hotel on Main street, on March 18, 1901, and organized the Kingston Driving Park Association.

The officers elected were W. H. Cory, president; A. S. Walker, vice president; James S. Winne, treasurer; John T. DuBois, secretary; and A. S. Walker, manager.

The directors elected were Henry Kelder, Joseph DeGraff, John F. Cloonan, Christopher N. DeWitt, Ogden F. Winne, Abe Vogel, John Decker, John C. Oliver, John Turck, Jacob Forst, Edward Sipperly, Nelson Smith.

George T. Freer, W. Scott Gillespie, George A. Kerr, Charles Horton, Grove Webster, George Palmer, Frank Cronk, W. W. Ten Broeck, A. E. Dederick, John H. Gray, Jerome Eaten, George B. Styles, Charles D. W. Cole, Gilead A. Smith, William Schryver and James Cummings.

The new organization had obtained a lease for a term of years of the old race track grounds on Manor avenue, and planned to erect new fences and buildings, and improve the track.

The 24th anniversary of the founding of the Industrial Home was celebrated March 13, 1901, in the old Academy of Music on O'Reilly street. That year the Industrial Home was located in a building on Broadway, near Staples street.

The Twentieth Regiment Band furnished the music for the celebration, and the exercises opened with the invocation by the Rev. Philip B. Strong, pastor of the Albany Avenue Baptist Church.

S. D. Coykendall, president of the board of trustees, and Miss Mary Isabella Forsyth, president of the institution, spoke briefly.

Others who spoke were the Rev. A. V. V. Raymond, president of Union College, and Judge A. T. Clearwater.

The children of the Industrial Home gave a program of songs and recitations.

The services were largely attended.

It is interesting to recall that Kingston's population in 1900, according to the federal census, was 24,535.

The American Hotel at the corner of Broadway and St. James street, was destroyed by fire on January 27, 1901. The lively stables adjoining the hotel were also burned. That year the hotel was under the management of Ernest Steuding.

The old hotel was a historic place. It was built in 1833 by a man named Wiley, who later sold it to Henry Hasbrouck of Marbletown.

Later the hotel was conducted by Ebenezer Wheeler, who was succeeded by Peter L. Osterhout. Still later a man named Styles operated the hotel for a number of years.

Older readers will recall the old hotel.

Another big fire that year occurred on February 2, when old School No. 11 on Crown street was burned. The fire left only the walls standing.

Later a new school was built on the site, and is now known as School No. 7.

Nylons May Decline

Washington, Sept. 16.—A drop in nylon stocking production is predicted for this fall, but a Civilian Production Administration spokesman said that "right now there is no cause for alarm."

Kenneth S. Weaver of the C.P.A. textile division, told a reporter last night that a 15 per cent reduction in nylon yarn deliveries to stocking manufacturers by the du Pont company would result in lowered production to be felt about Christmas.

Attributing the cut in deliveries to material shortages and labor difficulties, he said that "as yet this will not mean a serious shortage."

Speech by Wallace on Subject Out of His Department Violates Cabinet Teamwork Objective

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Sept. 16.—About the only way really to clear up the Wallace-Truman-Byrnes mud-dle on foreign policy would be for Secretary Wallace to resign and take the issue to the country.

This would leave President Truman free to continue his support of the Byrnes policy and would free the American government from any misunderstandings abroad as to the direction of the policies of the Department of State. It would also carry out the thought which may have been in President Truman's mind when he said that all he approved was Mr. Wallace's "right" to make the speech.

Actually Mr. Wallace had no "right" at all to make an address as Secretary of Commerce which dealt with the subject that are customarily handled by the Secretary of State. Teamwork in a cabinet hitherto has been the objective of every president. As for the cabinet it has never been considered a public forum for the open expression of different views and hence Mr. Truman was wrong in supposing that he could have two cabinet members talking publicly on opposite sides of a national policy.

It may well be that Mr. Wallace would be handicapped in expressing his views if he stayed in the cabinet. He would be in duty bound to hew to the line of administration policy. As an ex-cabinet member he would have no such inhibitions. So far as the building of public opinion is concerned, Mr. Wallace would have the right to endeavor to get as many Americans as possible to support his view and also to persuade them to influence the administration to change its policies toward Russia, Britain or any other foreign power.

But this "right" of free expression outside the cabinet is not to be confused with the so-called right to spread disunity so far as the administration's own policies are concerned or to encourage foreign governments to believe that our government's policy is in a state of flux and has been submitted to public discussion before the Chief Executive makes up his mind to continue or reverse an existing policy.

Put His Foot Into It

Mr. Wallace can be credited with a sincere desire to express what he believes is the proper policy to be observed toward Russia but President Truman put his foot in it when he announced to the press that he had approved the speech in advance. The denial that he intended to convey such a meaning is clumsy and about the worst example of official ineptitude since the days when the late President Harding, Republican, crossed his own Secretary of State, Charles Evans Hughes, by a remark in a press conference which plainly showed he didn't know what his own foreign policy really was.

The most charitable explanation of the whole incident is that Mr. Truman didn't have his mind on the subject when Henry Wallace was telling him or reading to him what he wanted to say in the New York speech. A superficial examination of the Wallace draft could have led Mr. Truman to believe it was merely an attempt to present a balanced point of view as to Russia. But whatever may have been Mr. Truman's mistaken impression of the speech, he surely was wrong in allowing any address at all on this subject. Foreign policy is not the province of the secretary of commerce.

Wrong Idea, Maybe

Mr. Truman may have had the idea that he was compelled politically to let Henry Wallace say what he pleased or that it would create embarrassment with the "left wing." Senator Pepper of Florida, Democrat, makes a point of Russian speeches and they are printed in full in Moscow newspapers but senators are a law unto themselves and everybody knows that such expressions are licensed by senatorial custom and no foreign government takes them seriously as criticisms. When Secretary Wallace, however, attacks the government of Great Britain, apologies are in order because he is a member of the President's cabinet and international courtesy requires that a secretary of state express a nation's foreign policy or else that contrary expressions be formally disavowed. Mr. Truman is in a hole and Mr. Wallace can pull him out of it and do his own cause more good by resigning now and debating the issue before the peoples of the world.

A somewhat similar episode occurred in 1915 when William Jennings Bryan resigned from the cabinet of President Wilson because the latter wanted to send Germany a stern note about the torpedoing of the Lusitania on which many American lives were lost. Secretary Bryan wanted to send a softly worded note of an appeasement nature. Mr. Bryan resigned and carried his case to the country but public opinion did not support him. If Mr. Wallace resigned now it would certainly make the issue clear cut and give Secretary Byrnes the standing he needs to carry on negotiations in Paris without the feeling that he is being undermined back home within the President's cabinet. MOLOTOV FORCED BYRNES' HAND

Why did it take Secretary of State Byrnes so long to see that Germany is the object of Russian conquest and that we, as a matter of military necessity—if we are to stay in Europe—must keep our former enemy out of the Russian camp?

That the Soviets would make an effort to Communize or otherwise dominate Germany could not have been doubted by anyone who spent much time thinking on the subject, even before the war's end.

Stalin said at Stalingrad he wanted only the destruction of Hitlerism, not of Germany nor even its army. Much has been said for months by way of warning that you can't plow under like so much corn a country with 60,000,000 people, with energy and resourcefulness; that the support of such a country would be coveted by competing world powers.

As soon as Russia moved into Germany, the Soviets began bidding for German friendship, propagandizing the people, organizing those inside her occupation zone, refusing to cooperate with the occupation forces in the other three zones despite the Potsdam agreement to operate Germany as an economic whole.

Yet it was not until after Foreign Minister Molotov in a speech July 10 said Russia would work for a strong and unified Germany that Byrnes showed signs of waking up to the problem he was up against. He appeared stunned by that speech; he fumbled and came up a day or two later with a re-assertion of his intention to re-operate Germany economically in one piece and criticized Russia for having blocked that Potsdam program.

Our Security at Stake

It was not until last week—15 months after the guns quit smoking in Europe and nearly two months after Molotov's all-out bid for the friendship of the Reich—that Byrnes was able or willing to match Molotov. In that two months, reports indicate, many a German had given up hope of support from the west and turned his face eastward.

It seems probable that it was these reports which drove Byrnes to take his great, belated stand at Stuttgart.

By his Stuttgart speech he showed for the first time his feeling that it may be worth another war to rehabilitate Germany and hold her with the West.

Was it the influence of the powerful Morgenthau crowd—those haters of the Nazis who also hated for all Germany and so violent as to demand virtually wiping off the face of the earth which held Byrnes back for so many months? Was it fear that Byrnes would be called pro-Fascist by fellow New Dealers or be accused of forgetting too quickly or that rebuilding the Reich would make the past war look futile? Or was Byrnes simply not able to see the facts?

Your guess is as good as mine. It is well to remember that Byrnes was assistant president under a man who conducted our complete destruction of Germany while sending $11,000,000,000 in lend lease supplies to build up a mighty Communist Russia.

We can only hope that he follows up the momentary advantage he gained when he went directly to the German people at Stuttgart and told them America no longer was for quarantining Germany, now wants a unified Germany governed by Germans. Byrnes will not likely get Russia to come in on his proposal in the near future; perhaps not even France.

But if he continues to work to that objective he will be setting one cardinal principle of democracy out in the spotlight where it can serve as a guide and a reminder to the people of the right of every nation to govern itself. He

Beatty Discusses Lime Supply for Ulster Farmers

There is still plenty of money available for the purchase of additional lime for fall application, according to Chairman Harry J. Beatty of the Agricultural Conservation Association, who proposes a means for farmers in need to obtain additional supplies.

In the Ulster County Production and Marketing News, Chairman Beatty, dealing with shortages, advised: "In case any of you are unable to purchase superphosphate by any means, you may save your receipted bills for all mixed fertilizers you bought this year. Show them to your committeemen when you sign up for 1947 and you can probably claim payment for both the phosphoric acid and potash in these mixed goods, possibly even in addition to your lime and superphosphate."

Continuing, he wrote: "The story on superphosphate is still pretty bad. Many of you probably feel that we have left you out on a limb. We approved your applications and sent your purchase orders to the dealer of your choice and still you haven't received delivery. But your dealer isn't to blame any more than we are."

"Strikes and plant break-downs have made it impossible for him to supply your orders. You may have heard too that just recently we called back from all dealers, all unfilled orders for superphosphate. This was done so that these orders could be re-issued to cover the price increase allowed by O.P.A. They will be sent back to all dealers who can supply your orders by December 31, 1946, which has now been determined as the final date on which these orders may be supplied."

Quoting George W. Boice, R.D. 2, the bulletin stated: "You can't get too much limestone on the soils." The successful dairy farmer continued: "If cows are to provide us with plenty of calcium in our milk, we must provide them with forage produced on well limed soils, especially legumes which take up large quantities of lime from the soil and store it in their leaves and stems."

Leaves From Boyle's Notebook

By JOHN MCKNIGHT
(For Hal Boyle)

Trieste (AP)—When Reporter Darrell M. Price was chasing fire trucks and ambulances in Anderson, S. C., six years ago, he realized vaguely that Italian was a language spoken by some people on the other side of the Atlantic. The Williamston, N. C., newshawk never had heard of the Slovene tongue.

In Trieste, hot-tempered post-war trouble center, Lieutenant Price is the American officer in charge of the Allied-sponsored Giornale Alleato, an Italian language daily whose non-partisan news policy has built its paid circulation to 65,000 in one year, and of Glas Zvezdnik, its Slovene counterpart which prints 10,000 to 12,000 copies.

So profitable is Giornale Alleato, Price says, that although newsprint limitations force it to turn down more than half the advertising offered, it pays the freight for the Slovene Journal, which accepts no advertising, and still has something left over.

It is going so well that Allied information service (successor to the psychological warfare branch) has cut it loose from official subsidy and set it up as an independent operation.

Owners of the printing shop where Giornale Alleato, the Allies Slovene paper and Trieste's four other dailies all are printed, have been so impressed with the commercial success of the straight news policy that they are planning another daily modeled after it.

"In an area where propaganda comes from all sides," the stocky blond Price says, "it's a tough job to put out an unbiased newspaper. We are jumped constantly from both sides, but the paper still sells."

"Held" On Newsstands

While the Allied-sponsored Trieste newspapers are permitted in Yugoslav-occupied Zone B of the disputed area, he added, reports filter back to Trieste that they are "held back" on news-

Oversight

Danville, Ill., Sept. 16 (AP)—Bob Ingram was happy when his lost billfold was returned, although $28 had been taken from it.

Whoever found the wallet and took the $28 overlooked $250 in a hidden compartment. Dropped into a mail box, the purse was returned by a postal employee.

So Ingram contributed $10 toward the Postmen's Picnic Fund.

Who's There

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 16 (AP)—Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Grant of near-by Slingerlands uptowned downstairs in the wee small hours to capture a noisy "burglar," but they found an owl perched on their mantelpiece, asking "who-o-o."

The Grants opened the front door and guided the owl out with a broom.

Old Hand

Watkins Glen, N. Y., Sept. 16 (AP)—Fishing in Lake Lamoka near Tyrone, Albert Smith hauled in his casting line to find at the end a 30-pound snapping turtle estimated to be more than 200 years old. The shell was covered with a growth of green bacteria.

Last year in Seneca Lake Smith caught a Lake Trout which which was believed to be more than 50 years old.

Ready to Shoot

Oneida, N. Y., Sept. 16 (AP)—"We've got them cornered in the cellar," campers at this Oneida Lake community told a state trooper when he arrived on a burglarly call.

The trooper, ready to shoot, crept into the building camp the group was guarding. The intruder? A porcupine!

Many products made for other purposes have been used, such as deodorizing blocks and fumigators that throw off a strong odor to cover over an offensive odor but THEY DO NOT CLEAN nor do they DISINFECT but do leave an oily residue on trap and drain to collect disease germs, uric acid and scum which causes offensive odor.

CLEAN-SCENT

DOES THE COMPLETE JOB OF FOUR (4) OPERATIONS ON TOILETS. It Cleans, Disinfects, Deodorizes and Opens Clogged Drains thus eliminating any cause for offensive odors.

Arkansas Fire Takes 2 Lives; Search Ruins

Hot Springs, Ark., Sept. 16 (AP)—Death toll in the Great Northern Hotel fire here Saturday stood at two today as a search of the ruins was planned in an effort to determine if others perished.

Big Apple Crop Is State Forecast

Agriculturists Expect Gain Will Be Seven Times That of 1945

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 16 (AP)—The New York State Department of Agriculture expects the state's 1946 apple crop to be seven times greater than a year ago.

The anticipated crop of 14,400,000 bushels will, however, be below the average of 16,306,000 bushels for the past 10 years, the department said in a joint federal-state report issued yesterday. Crop failures caused last year's apple production to drop to 2,160,000 bushels.

The report predicted a 61,600-ton grape crop, almost twice the 1945 total, a peach harvest of 2,024,000 bushels, compared with 1,660,000 bushels a year ago, and 656,000 bushels of pears, about double the 1945 harvest.

Good Taste Today

By Emily Post

(Author of "Etiquette," "Children Are People," etc.)

YOUNGER GENERATION'S RUDENESS

Behavior such as described in the following letter is typical of the younger generation's rudeness: "Recently I was criticized because, while at a mixed party given by a girl my own age, I rose when her mother entered the room to greet her daughter's guests. The boys rose also, but no other girl did so. I should like to know what is proper in such an instance."

The others were extremely rude to have remained seated while greeted by one who was so much older.

Addressing Doctors

Dear Mrs. Post: I work with a great many doctors and my colleagues and I have been discussing the proper method of addressing a doctor. The general opinion is that when there are several doctors present, each should be spoken to as "Dr. Smith" and "Dr. Brown" and that when working with one doctor alone, it is sufficient to say "Doctor."

Answer: When saying the name only once, always say "Dr. Smith" or "Dr. Brown" even when he is the only one. On the other hand, repeating "Doctor Jeremiah" for the dozenth time is unendurable and for this reason, "Doctor" alone is used by persons of best taste.

Supposed-to-be Gentleman

Dear Mrs. Post: In your column the other day, what did you mean when you said that "in moving pictures, all too often a supposed-to-be gentleman is kissing an unmarried girl's hand?"

Answer: The column that you read must have been cut somewhat. What I meant was that a high-born European never kisses a young girl's hand any more than he calls her "Madame!" But he greets every married woman by kissing her hand, always.

Gotham's Best Welter Prospect Added to Thursday's Card; Jones Defeat Morgans in Playoff Game Behind Windburn, 6 to 3

Andy Celuch Hits Homer, Double, Single for Winners

Bill Windburn Pitches Hitless Ball for Last Four Frames; Bud Swarthout Is Losing Pitcher

Hurling no-hit ball and striking out seven batters over the last four innings at municipal stadium Sunday afternoon, Bill Windburn, with some clutch hitting by Andy Celuch, chucked Jones Dairy to a 6 to 3 City League victory over Morgans Restaurant. A momentary lack of control in the ninth threatened to mar Windburn's mound job but he staggered through and struck out Al Vogt with the bases loaded to insure the important win.

Meet Grunies Next
As a result of the win Sunday Jones will meet the Grunewald Bakers next Sunday afternoon at Hasbrouck Park for the ultimate championship of the local circuit. The game will start at 2:30 o'clock. Bill Windburn and Tommy Fisher are the probable hurlers.

With Windburn flipping great ball after a shaky start, his mound job was lightened somewhat by the heavy clouting of Andy Celuch, third baseman, who slammed out three hits in four trips after hoisting a fly in the first inning. Andy culminated his attack with a homer in the seventh inning.

Lefty Bud Swarthout opposed Windburn Sunday and pitched eight-hit ball. The veteran southpaw had a no-hitter going for the first three frames until Celuch bounced him for a double in the fourth.

The Dairymen enjoyed three hits in the expense of Swarthout before a small crowd of interested spectators at the uptown ball orchard, when three scoring stanzas provided six runs. The winners took a 4 to 3 lead in the sixth and were never headed after that.

Morgans picked up a couple of unearned runs off Windburn in the second when Storms opened with a single to right. Heneberry struck out for the first of three times on a low inside pitch which got through Zadany and rolled to the wall as Storms scampered all the way to third. Billy Balli bunted to the box and was safe as he took the throw but failed to touch the sack. Brinkman bashed a hit through short and beat Van Derzee's throw as Storms crossed for the first marker. After McConnell forced Brinkman, Swarthout was safe on Van Derzee's boot and Ball came over for the second round.

The dairymen tied the count in the fourth when Celuch opened with a double and A. Berardi biffed a single to center. After M. Berardi and Dulin skied out, Elmer Hopper plopped a single to right. Both runs came in on the two outfield hits.

Morgans rallied for their final run in the fourth. Bill Ball singled to center and after Brinkman and McConnell were retired, Swarthout singled to right. Matt Weishaupt went into run for Ball and came over on Windburn's wild pitch.

Jones put together a couple of hits in the sixth aided by a walk, a homer and a sacrifice to take a 4 to 3 lead. Celuch again opened the rally with a single to right and later scored.

Swarthout retired both Van Derzee and Zadany on infield outs in the seventh stanza but the next two sluggers had different ideas. Andy Celuch slammed one of Swarthout's soft "blooper" pitches between Heneberry and Shullis.

into deep right center and dashed around the bases for a homer to make it 5-3. A. Berardi enjoyed the festivities too with another long wallop to right which rolled to the bank as he galloped around for the second straight homer.

Press Box Jottings

The first few innings of Sunday's tilt were drawn out to the hilt but the latter part breezed along in good style. Van Derzee and Swarthout didn't seem to get along with each other very well, which the former took his place in the batter's box. This show made the game a little longer. Starting time was slated for 2:05 but didn't start until 2:40. . . . Chappie Van Derzee pulled off the play of the game in the sixth when he went back of second base to snare Matt Weishaupt's drive. The shortstop gloved the pill and threw fast to Dulin at first to rob the batter of a hit. . . . Weishaupt took over at third for Storms who moved to second when Billy Ball came out of the game. The young third sacker threw out five runners in fine style. . . . Jimmy Morgan, former City League player, was an active coach for the losers. . . . Buddy Zoller, Morgan coach, and Chuck Davis, the stadium groundkeeper, had a "rhubarb" during the game when the coach got steamed up over Bill Murphy's decision. Zoller stormed over to the Jones bench where Davis was sitting and for a few minutes both tempers were raging but as quick as it had started, it ended.

The Cubs won this game in ten innings, 4 to 3, but the Dodgers came back to take the nightcap, 2 to 0. The umpire is Lou Jorda.

Big Third Inning Rally Decides Tilt; Shelly Injured; Locals Fizzle on Defense

Driving Dick Fitzgerald out of the box with a big six-run bulge in the third inning, the Poughkeepsie Roe Movers won their second straight game from the Kingston Recreation Sunday afternoon at Memorial Field by the convincing score of 13 to 2. The Recs committed six costly errors to help the Bridge City nine to belt them around with mercy.

John "Whitey" Tulacz, former Rec hurler, was on the mound again for Poughkeepsie and he brandished a neat six-hitter. The veteran right-hander had a no-hitter for five innings when he faced 17 batters.

Poughkeepsie pounced on Fitz for a pair of tallies in the second and came right back in the third with a six-run total. The former Fordham University athlete relinquished the mound job and Johnny Needham came on to get his ears pinned back for the rest of the tilt. Poughkeepsie, mopping up on Needham in the third, hit him for two in the sixth and the grand finale of three in the eighth.

Shelly Is Injured
Bill Shelly, Rec shortstop, was forced to leave in the game in the fourth when he was cracked on the side of the head by a batted ball. Austin Knickerbocker, who played with the Toronto Maple Leafs of the International League this past summer, rattled a drive to short which took a bad hop and caromed off Shelly's head. The ball bounced 30 feet in the air and landed in left as Knickerbocker pulled up at second with a double. The blow felled Shelly and after a few minutes of examination he retired from the game.

Kingston, after being hogtied by Tulacz for the first five stanzas, finally came to life in the sixth. Frank Bambara reached on Schlessinger's error and Gentile slammed out a single. After Steve Ristau biffed another one-baser, Joe Wahl atoned partially for some of his errors by conking a double to left driving in both runs.

Resigned Football Stars May Wind Up Back in Service

Memphis, Tenn., Sept. 16 (AP)—President Truman reportedly has ordered the induction into military service of football stars who have left West Point and Annapolis to play at the old home school, the Commercial Appeal said today in a copyrighted story.

It is understood, said the paper, that Mr. Truman has become linked about the departures from the academies and has ordered his military aide, Maj. Gen. Harry J. Vaughan, to do something about it.

"This something" is reported to be a series of phone calls to the Selective Service officials of states which are harboring "escapees" from the academies. The paper said that draft boards immediately induct football stars who have left West Point and Annapolis to play at the old home schools, the paper added.

Such action, the story added, would affect Thomas (Shorty) McWilliams of Mississippi State, Clyde Scott of Arkansas, and Notre Dame's Bob Kelly.

No comment was immediately available from the White House. Col. James L. Davis, Mississippi state director of Selective Service, said that McWilliams, who recently resigned from West Point, has not registered or the draft but indicated he had been notified he should register.

Scott, former fullback for Navy, who returned to Arkansas, was classified 1-A by his local draft board recently.

Tough Mark Is Set

Cleveland, Sept. 16 (AP)—Two no-hitters in one day's play today gave teams competing in the Amateur Softball Association Tournament a tough mark to beat. In the men's division, Johnny Skoicki of the Columbus, O. Ferguson Auditors not only hurled a no-hitter but also won his own game with a home run to defeat the Phoenix, Ariz., Funk Jewelers 1 to 0 in the third day of tournament play yesterday. Marge Nichols of the Chicago Match Corp. of America matched his feat in the girls' division except for the home run. But she struck out 16 and only one walk spoiled an otherwise perfect game as she beat the Stamford, Conn., Nutmegs 9 to 0.

Better Golf

By SAM SNEAD

1. Everything that I am going to say today is known to nearly every golfer. Too many golfers want to use knowledge into focus and use it in play. We all know the shafts of wood clubs are longer than the shafts in irons. The reason, of course, is that the longer the shaft, the more power. We depend upon them to deliver the yardage and thus, shorten our approach shots. Since the wood shaft is longer than the iron, it follows that the clubhead must leave a wood shaft at a flatter angle than with the iron because it's necessary that the sole of the wood—of course, iron too—must be flat on the ground in the address position. Iron club play, because of the shorter shafts, means you must stand nearer to the ball. Sole clubhead behind the ball and then the shaft itself. Almost automatically positions you at the right distance from the clubhead up to your feet. But if you cock the clubhead up on its heel you're probably bending over too far or standing too far away. Swimming, Boating Party Is Enjoyed by 'Y' Group

The Y. M. C. A. Youth Center swimming and boating party, finale of the season at DeWitt Lake Sunday afternoon, was enjoyed by more than 60 boys and girls. Lou Schafer, physical director of the "Y," announced today.

He said, "The water was snappy, but far from cold and the swimmers were in and out many times between 1 and 4 o'clock."

There were other mediums of enjoyment besides the water sport, he added. Many danced in the pavilion and others hiked around the lake. Some took sunbaths on the beach.

Director Schafer and "Chick" Correll, also of the "Y" staff, said that many more special parties are scheduled for the youth group. Plans for the Halloween party were made that it will be one of the best ever promoted at the Y. M. C. A.

May Decide Today On Missouri Probe

Washington, Sept. 16 (AP)—The House Campaign Expenditures Committee may decide today whether to investigate the Missouri democratic primary in which Truman-backed Enos Axtell defeated Rep. Roger D. Slaughter.

Members said this question probably will be discussed at a closed meeting (10 a. m., E.S.T.), along with other committee plans for procedure.

Jerome Walsh, third candidate in the Missouri Fifth District race, has asked for an investigation, contending that the candidates opposing him made excessive expenditures.

Also on the committee's docket is a request from a thus far unidentified individual in Connecticut for an inquiry into activities of the C.I.O. Political Action Committee in that state.

Chairman Priest (D., Tenn.) told newsmen that if a probe of P.A.C. on any other organization is made it will be on the basis of specific complaints rather than a blanket study of the organization.

Court Will Investigate Saskatchewan Disaster

Estevan, Sask., Sept. 16 (AP)—Canadian aviation officials said today a court of inquiry would be convened to investigate the disaster in which 21 members of the Royal Canadian Air Force were killed yesterday when a Dakota transport crashed while attempting to land at a military airport here.

Pieces of wreckage were thrown over a wide area as the gasoline tanks blew up at the moment of the crash. The bodies of the victims were all badly burned and only one could be identified immediately.

An eyewitness said he saw the plane approach the field with landing gear down. Then, he said, the pilot retracted the under carriage and took the ship up again to a height of about 100 feet, from where it nose-dived and crashed.

Mead, Lehman Termed Labor's Greatest Champs

Dewey Treats Delinquency and Palestine Angles in Messages to
Conrail Votes

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 16 (AP)—Democratic candidates in the coming election had the support of two labor organizations.

The New York state labor committee for Mead, meeting in Rochester yesterday, announced it would support Governor Herbert H. Lehman, Democratic candidate for U. S. senator.

The action followed the formal endorsement Saturday at Lake Placid of Democratic, American Labor and Liberal party candidates by the New York State C.I.O., which claims a membership of 1,200,000.

Other week-end political developments included conferences by U. S. Senator James M. Mead (D-N.Y.), Democratic candidate for governor, with upstate party leaders and an address of Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, G.O.P. standard bearer seeking reelection, in which he told a Brooklyn youth rally that his administration developed "the most extensive delinquency prevention in the country."

Dewey also sent a message to the annual convention of the Western New York State Zionist region at Niagara Falls last night. He told the delegates that Palestine problems must be solved quickly in order to guarantee peace.

Endorsement of the Democratic, A.L.P. and Liberal candidates came at the close of a three-day state C.I.O. convention. The states are identical.

The state labor committee for Mead, which claims to represent 800,000 members of A.F.L. unions and railroad brotherhoods termed Mead and Lehman "two of labor's greatest champions."

The committee will meet again September 24 in Albany.

A committee named to determine whether the State Federation of Labor shall endorse any political candidates is scheduled to meet September 24 in Albany.

Dewey said in administration, in relation to corrective treatment for young persons in institutions, had eliminated "inefficient practices that stemmed way back to the Civil War."

He also took a one-sentence slap at Russia, saying the Soviet Union had delayed "the preparation of peace."

Mead, who spoke at Schenectady after conferring with party leaders from six eastern New York counties, said the Senate War Investigating Committee had "delved deeply" into what he termed the problem of military government abroad.

Working to assemble a sub-committee to visit Europe for further "extensive investigation."

Mead, who has announced he would resign as chairman of the investigating committee to run for governor, added he would "have nothing to say about politics" until he opened his campaign about Oct. 1.

At Utica, Dr. Fred J. Douglas, former Republican congressman from the old 33rd (Oneida and Herkimer) district, announced he would support Mead in the November 5 election. He said of the Democratic candidate:

"Never were his abilities and his soundness of character so clearly manifested than in his conduct as chairman of the nation's powerful Senate War Investigating Committee."

he considers a "more realistic" attitude toward Russia.

If so, a showdown is in the making over the current "tough" policy of Secretary of State Byrnes.

No one in either the Wallace camp or at the State Department appears to consider that Mr. Truman's statement on Saturday resolved the basic policy differences between the two cabinet officers.

In that declaration, which he read to reporters himself, the Chief Executive made four main points:

His approval of Wallace's speech at a news conference last Thursday actually was intended to cover only Wallace's right to make the speech, not what he said.

The belief that he had endorsed the speech was a "natural misunderstanding" due to the fact that he had not said what he intended to say.

There has been no change in American foreign policy.

There will be no "significant" change in American foreign policy without consultation with Byrnes and congressional leaders.

While Republicans assailed the President's "mistake" and questioned the wisdom of letting Wallace criticize administration foreign policy, Democrats generally hailed Mr. Truman's explanation and expressed hope the incident would be considered cleared up.

The attitude of State Department officials appeared to be that they, too, hoped the row would die down but that they were by no means confident of it.

Disappointment Expressed
Some disappointment was expressed privately that the President had not taken a stronger stand for Byrnes and against Wallace.

Some friends of Wallace, on the other hand, were visibly cheered both by Mr. Truman's approval of the Secretary's right to make the speech and the fact that he placed no blame for the incident on Wallace.

There was good reason to believe that Wallace, on the whole, found the President's handling of the case most satisfactory. His main objective, it was learned, is to challenge openly what he considers objectionable points of

Correspondents Ask U. S. to Intervene

Shanghai, Sept. 16 (AP)—Foreign correspondents in China today asked the American State Department to intervene in a criminal libel action brought against one of their number by a German war criminal suspect.

If such actions are to be permitted in Chinese courts, they argued, "every correspondent covering an American war crimes trial" would be endangered.

Wolfgang Schenke, defendant in a war crimes trial before an American military tribunal, brought the criminal libel action against Walter Rundle of the United Press Associations, who had quoted American officers' statements on the Schenke case. Rundle's hearing is set for September 23.

Correspondents radioed their plea to Secretary of State Byrnes, asking representations to the Chinese Government against prosecution of the case, and representations against China's "restrictive publication laws, which recognize as privileged only the Chinese government's official releases and court proceedings."

They added that "we regard this as a most serious infringement on press freedom... a threat to the safety and personal liberty of every foreign correspondent in China."

Byrnes' policy and to do so, if possible, as a member of the cabinet. He has had this project in mind for months, according to persons familiar with his views, and they say they see no reason why he should give up the idea just when it is well started.

At least some State Department officials have considered the same probability, and there was speculation that the department might recommend to Mr. Truman either that he tell Wallace not to make any more speeches directly or indirectly critical of Byrnes' policies or else that he require State Department clearance of all government foreign policy speeches in the future.

Two Counts
Pending decisions on this and possibly other issues yet to come up, Wallace's position in the cabinet seemed likely to be a subject of White House review on at least two counts:

If Wallace remains in the cabinet it might be interpreted abroad as a kind of presidential approval of his foreign policy proposals.

If he leaves it presumably would deprive the administration of Wallace's political resources in an election year.

Wallace himself was due back in town today from the calm of the New York family farm where he sat out the international storm over his address.

Temperatures Are in 30's
While the official city thermometer at the city hall was recording temperatures in the 40's on Friday night, thermometers in other sections of the city were recording in the 30's. According to the readings of the official thermometer temperatures Saturday ranged from 42 to 70 degrees, while Sunday the lowest recorded was 43 and the highest 75 degrees. The lowest point reached last night was 44 degrees.

Independence Vote Wins
Copenhagen, Sept. 16 — Partial returns from Saturday's referendum on whether the Faroe Islands shall be independent of Denmark showed today that 5,650 islanders had voted for independence to 5,500 for a government plan for continuing Danish sovereignty. Full returns will not be available for some time.

Book Tells Aims Of State Building

been planned to correct these conditions.

Chief emphasis is given to the building programs that are scheduled for the Mental Hygiene, Education and Conservation Departments. Also explained are the approved programs for the Health, Correction, Social Welfare and Public Works Departments and the State Police.

Based on 1940 construction costs, the approved program for the Mental Hygiene Department approximated $80,000,000 almost half the total approved program as of July 1, 1946, closing date for the brochure. Conservation, with projects valued at nearly $33,500,000 and Education with more than $28,000,000 are second and third in size of program.

A feature of the brochure is a fold-in map in color of New York State on which the majority of the approved projects are located through the use of symbols.

Dewey Gives Foreword
Prefacing the story of the commission's work is a foreword by Governor Thomas E. Dewey, who set the commission on a trail-blazing path of aiding municipal postwar planning and assured the State departmental construction program through establishment of the Postwar Reconstruction Fund.

In his foreword the Governor writes: "We of New York State have the right to be very proud of our State. In many ways it is the most progressive State in the world."

"During the war years, it was almost impossible to improve the State's services or, in many cases, to maintain them properly. However, we did not sit by idly and let matters drift."

"We tried to foresee the problems and to make plans to deal with them. Now the time is drawing near to put those plans into effect."

"We are fortunate in having accumulated wartime savings of over five hundred million dollars, accompanied by substantial reductions in taxes during the past four years. We intend to use these funds for the maximum benefit of the entire state."

"We believe that every citizen has a right to know what we plan to do and why we plan to do it. This booklet has been prepared to give you the facts."

State Has Pioneered
"The State of New York has pioneered in public works planning. We have a superb organization for the performance of this job in our Postwar Public Works Planning Commission. It is an agency of action and not merely an agency of analysis and research."

"Today we face tasks and opportunities almost without parallel in the history of our State. We must do our utmost to build broadly for the future for a better future."

all the people. The work of the Postwar Public Works Planning Commission is one of the many steps to achieve that goal."

The Commission was created in 1942 by the Legislature on the recommendation of its Joint Committee on Industrial and Labor Relations which was headed by Irving M. Ives, Majority Leader of the Assembly and now dean of the State School of Industrial and Labor Relations at Cornell.

Following its reorganization the Governor appointed John E. Burton, State Budget Director, to the chairmanship. He has continued as chairman since.

Other members are Comptroller Frank C. Moore, Commerce Commissioner Martin P. Catherwood, Charles D. Breitell, Counsel to the Governor; Senator Arthur H.

Wicks, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee; Assemblyman D. Mallory Stephens, chairman of the Assembly Ways and Means Committee, and Assemblyman Julius J. Gans. All serve without salary.

Nearly Third as Many Divorces as Marriages

Washington, Sept. 16 (AP)—The nation's courts ground out nearly one-third as many divorces as there were marriages in 1945, setting divorce record 25.5 percent over that of 1944, the previous peak year.

In reporting the divorce-marriage ratio, the Federal Security Agency said more than 502,000 marriages ended in divorce courts last year, while 1,618,331 couples were married. The marriage rate was 8.7 percent below the peak year of 1942.

Wary of using its study to predict future trends, the F.S.A. reported that both marriage and divorce rates rise with prosperity and fall with depression, adding: "The marriage rate is the more sensitive of the two, since a marriage contract can be entered into more readily than it can be dissolved."

Court-Guard Searches For 14 Other Crewmen
Norfolk, Va., Sept. 16 (AP)—Twenty-four Norwegian seamen, snatched from the stormy Atlantic by rescue vessels two days after their ship—the motor tanker Marit II—had split in half in hurricane-lashed seas 148 miles off the North Carolina coast, were headed for northern U. S. ports today while Coast Guard planes and surface craft pressed a search for 14 or more missing men.

The cutter Agassiz already was steaming in the area where the 7,417-ton Marit II foundered and Commander J. R. Scullion of the Norfolk Coast Guard's air-sea rescue division had search planes out at sunrise in what he readily admitted was a faint chance for additional rescues.

First notification ashore that the tropical storm, which whirled northeastward over the week-end and had claimed major prey came in a radio dispatch from the tanker Pan Amoco. It disclosed she had picked up 18 survivors in a life-boat from the "sunk" Norwegian ship yesterday. Later a search plane directed the American tanker Gulf Hawk to a position 40 miles north of the first rescue and six men were taken from a raft in "fair to good" condition. The Gulf Hawk is bound for Philadelphia and the Pan Amoco for New York.

B-25 Wreck Found in Mountain Cove

Brevard, N. C., Sept. 16 (AP)—A remote mountain cove today disclosed the fate of an army B-25 bomber that crashed Friday with its five occupants, including Major General Paul B. Murphree, temporary commander of the Eighth Air Force.

An army ground rescue party reached the scene of the crash Sunday after picking its way at the rate of a mile an hour over two miles of rugged mountains. The plane had sliced off tops of trees for 100 yards before crashing into the side of Cold Mountain in a densely wooded cove about 200 feet below the summit.

Burned wreckage of the plane, which had been unreported since Friday at 11 a. m., was discovered early yesterday. En route from Selfridge Field, Detroit, to Mc-
